

What's New in SignFlow

Two new ways to get people in - and to get documents signed.

1. Self-registration (with IT approval)

- New users can request an account themselves from the login screen: click "Create an account" and enter their name, email, password, team, and reporting manager.
- The request goes to IT under Admin > Registrations, which shows a pending count.
- IT approves (the person becomes a Requestor and signs in with the password they chose) or rejects with a reason.
- No one can sign in until approved - the approval is the gate. After approving, set their real role and team under Users.

2. Send a signature request to a specific person

- When making a request, choose the new "Send to a specific person" mode (PDF documents).
- Search the directory by name or email and pick anyone - regardless of team or role.
- Place their signature box and submit; the recipient is notified by email.
- The recipient sees it under "Awaiting your signature" on their home screen and signs with the same Review-and-sign screen approvers use - even a plain Requestor can sign what is sent directly to them.

Together: someone self-registers, IT approves them, and they become instantly searchable by email for a direct signature request.
